Farmers Day

National Farmers Day or Kisan Diwas is celebrated on 23rd of December every year to pay honour to Chaudhary Charan Singh who was the fifth PM of India for the great work done by the farmers of our country. He served the country as PM for a very short tenure starting from July 1979 till January 1980. He introduced many policies to improve the life of Indian farmers.

[The green revolution during the 60s evolved in Punjab and Haryana transformed the agricultural picture of the country.] This increased the productivity and thus India became self-sufficient in various agro-commodities.

Despite several policies been announced and technology been improved for the betterment of cultivation, agriculture in India is still in a poor state. * Every year, the Indian farmers have to fight the natural crisis such as drought, flood, poor quality seeds, etc. Even though, for the last 10-15 years, farmers in India are getting a lot of relief from the government, such as receiving fair price for their production, rebate on loan, facility to use new technology for cultivation and many more; but there is yet a lot to be done to improve the conditions of the farmers and their farming practices, only then our country would be a developed country in the true sense.
